Frause Expands Public Affairs Practice

Former King County Communications Director Carolyn Duncan Joins Local Communication Firm

SEATTLE (Jan. XX, 2010) – Seattle-based communications firm Frause announced that former King County Executive Communications Director Carolyn Duncan has joined the firm as a senior associate.

Prior to joining Frause Duncan held the positions of Deputy Communications Director for King County Executive and Governor Gary Locke and as Communication Director for King County Executive Ron Sims and King County Executive Kurt Triplett.

“Carolyn’s public affairs and public agency expertise will add substantially to our public affairs practice,” explained Bob Frause, chairman and CEO. “She has the skills, experience and relationship to help us grow this part of our business. I’m looking forward to her working with both private and public sector clients,” said Frause.
